Aged Mexican Drowned When
Rope is Lost; Was Repairing Remnant of "Canutillo" Bridge.

El Paso, Texas, July 14.—It has developed that the Rio Grande flood, which caused heavy damage here a few days ago, putting street lights out of commission and washing away two bridges, was not content with a material sacrifice alone, but demanded a human life as well.

A reward of $10 has been offered by Joe Spicer of California for the discovery of the body of the Mexican, who, the belief in Canutillo district, used to humor the aged Mexican with a decent burial.

The water is over the lower ground near Canutillo, and the river is higher than it has been at any time since the rains started. All the damage that can be done to the wheat and other crops has been done, and the ranchers are devoting their entire time to saving the remaining signs of the Canutillo bridge, in order that communication with the west side will not be cut off for a very long time.

In the city, flooded cellars, car schedules thrown out, dirt and rocks washed down from the hills and many houses damaged, were the results of the two storms on Monday afternoon and night.

Carrizo, with a number of native and American residents of Canutillo had been working desperately all day Monday and Tuesday night in an effort to save the bridge from being washed away. Carrizo had a rope tied around his neck and the end fastened to the supporting span of the bridge.

During the night he lost his rope and, clinging to the bridge stonework with one hand, and reaching down to remove the collecting brush and driftwood from the pier of the bridge, he lost his balance and fell into the efflux water. Being completely exhausted from his night's work, Carrizo was unable to swim ashore and the fact that was seen of him was when he disappeared a half mile down stream.

At O'Donnell and Leon streets an adobe grocery store, owned by Pedro Melendo, was wrecked during the worst of the afternoon storm. At 5 o'clock the entire front of the building caved in, and shortly after the wall on Leon street cracked and a large part of it fell. Many cracks in the building centered it made, and a force of men was employed tearing it down on Tuesday morning. The building had been damaged in the storm of two weeks ago and all the goods had been moved.

The heavy rain of Monday evening left Jarez as bad as it did El Paso, and a considerable amount of damage was done.

On Calle Ramon Ortiz, several places in the street were washed away, so far, where the sewer was recently put in. On several other streets in the southern part of the city, the loose earth over the pipes recently placed in the streets was also washed away, causing large holes in the street. In several of the streets on Concreto street opposite the little plaza, the water rushed in and covered the floors of the places with mud.

In the eastern part of the city, two adobe houses collapsed as a result of the water. The spread of the city was a mass of mud Tuesday as a result of the rain.

Boats and Bathing Suits for Rent. Thus it was that the town folk was sprung the morning after the big rain. This joke has been used and used again in El Paso, since the days when San Jacinto plaza was a great ocean and the river ran along Mills street. South El Paso, east with its unusual muddles, was a favorite haunt of this hoary old joke. But when El Paso street was paved it became its inevitable self to east El Paso and Chihuahua. Tuesday morning friends, in the form of a freshly painted metal sign, appeared in the center of the Plaza block site where the water was waist deep.

With extreme reluctance friends had put on women's garments and was swimming won.

"Look at me!" he exclaimed, smiling. "And I am a lovely thing to be courting a Queen of Lydia."

Worse than that, he expected the word of being three-fourths cotton—Chicago Tribune.

PARRAL*Conductor of Train is Accused of Throwing Mexican Off
Steps as Car Moves, and Mob Gets After Him.

Paradise, Colo., July 14.—A Williams, an American railroad man had a narrow escape from mob violence Saturday.

Because the passengers aboard the Parral and Durango train, running between Miami Springs and Durango, said that he had thrown a passenger out of the train after it had left Miles Canyon station for this city, an angry mob wanted to lynch the conductor when the train reached this city. The timely intervention of Colonel Jose de la Torre Soto and Luis Herrera, took the means of saving Williams from the mob. They drove the crowd back to the train and phoned to the sheriff, and finally with the aid of several mounted policemen managed to get him safely to this city.

Part of the mob followed and a race of men and Williams, until he got away from the crowd and ran to the office of the sheriff, who was said to be partly under the weather. Williams asked for his ticket and the man began to search his pockets for the ticket, but was unable to find it in the story gone, and Williams demanded that he pay the equivalent of it. He did not pay. The mob said that he had none and then got up from his seat and went to some friends who were sitting opposite him. The crowd asked them for money to pay his fare. The amount he gathered was not quite sufficient to get him to Parral, but this amount he tendered to Williams, who refused it and told him to come pay or leave the train.
